DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Representative—91st District,
JUDGE H. F. PIERATT.

THE Fiscal Courts of 75 counties in the state will meet on the 7th inst., and at this meeting a proposition will be made to them to make an appropriation towards the fund for a Kentucky building and Kentucky exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. Wolfe county is one of the 75. It is to be hoped that this matter will be taken up by our magistrates and given full and favorable consideration. This is a work that concerns the entire state. Wolfe is as deeply concerned as any and cannot afford to be amiss in doing its share. The Kentucky Exhibit Association has laid plans which, if carried out in full, will give the state the finest advertisement of its resources and products it has ever had. It has secured space many times larger in each department than the state had at the Chicago World's Fair, it has begun the work of collecting exhibits, it has selected a design for a handsome state building, it is pushing its work in every way and the people of the state cannot afford to be backward in doing their share. The gentlemen connected with the association are doing this work for nothing, purely out of their interest in seeing the state well represented at what is now assured will be the greatest of all the World's Fairs. We hope Wolfe county will be found in line with the other progressive counties of the state in helping this good work.

HON. N. B. HAYS, for some years a resident of Hazel Green, where he was the first instructor in Hazel Green Academy, and to whom a large number of our young men and young women are indebted for their initial education, now lives at Pineville, and is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General. It will be seen that he hails from "the black district," where a Democrat has just "about the same chance as a cat in a h— without claws." He is one of 17,000 Democrats in the district, where the only incentive for being a Democrat is love of principle. At every election they go to the polls and vote, and in national and state elections have the satisfaction of knowing that they count 17,000 to the Democratic majority and that but for them some of the state ticket would not be elected. But it is rather discouraging to see all the county and district offices filled by Republicans. Such loyalty as theirs should be recognized and rewarded by the Democrats of the state at large, and the opportunity is now. Mr. Hays is the only aspirant for office from his district, he represents 17,000 Spartans, is individually worthy, and under all circumstances should be accorded the nomination by acclamation. Unless these isolated 17,000 patriots are recognized patience may cease to be a virtue, and they may be absorbed by the dominant party. The Tenth district will give Mr. Hays an almost solid vote, and he should meet the same encouragement all over Kentucky. But read below his letter:

PINEVILLE, KY., March 27, 1903.

DEAR SIR: I write to ask your valuable aid in my race. If my friends will go to the polls I have the race won. I am the only candidate from the Eleventh Congressional District, and the 17,000 Democrats of this district are entitled to representation on the state ticket. The 7th Congressional District has a candidate for the following places: Hon. W. P. Thorne, lieutenant governor; Hon. Henry Bosworth, treasurer; Hon. T. T. Hedger, commissioner of agriculture; Rev. Thos. Arnold, superintendent public instruction, and one of my opponents, Hon. Ira Julian, for attorney-general. The 8th Congressional District has Hon. R. J. Beckwith, governor; Morgan Chinn, clerk appellate court; Hon. John B. Chennault, and one of my opponents, Hon. Willard Mitchell. The 4th District Hon. J. C. W. Beckham, governor; Hon. Josh Griffith and Gus Richardson, treasurer; and another of my opponents

Hon. Chas. Carroll. We have never had recognition on the state ticket and I appeal to the sober and impartial judgment of the Democracy of the state if this is fair and just to my district. Hoping you will go to the polls and help me, I am,

Most sincerely,
N. B. HAYS.

THE HERALD is under obligations to Col. T. T. Hedger, by reason of that gentleman's attitude toward the Tenth district, and is supporting him for the office of commissioner of agriculture, but it is not antagonistic to Mr. Vreeland, the present assistant commissioner, who is also an aspirant for the same office. Mr. Vreeland is a newspaper man, worthy and capable for the duties incumbent upon a commissioner, and to be opposed by such a man does honor to the aspirations of Col. Hedger. And they are both good Democrats.

Tired Mothers.

It's hard work to take care of children and to cook, sweep, wash, sew and mend besides. Tired mothers should take Hood's Sarsaparilla—it refreshes the blood, improves the appetite, assures restful sleep.

During a row at Lee City Saturday afternoon last a son of James Strickland was stabbed by a man named McCormick, whereupon the latter was shot in the shoulder by Clay Rose. It was at first thought Strickland's wound would prove fatal, but later reports say he will recover. Particulars have as yet not been learned here.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scaling pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

C. C. Hanks returned last week from the Indian Territory, where he has been to establish his claim to the John Harper estate, of which he is a descendant. Your editor earnestly hopes that all of the Wolfe county applicants will succeed in establishing their right to the estate, yet he believes from his information in the premises that the case will be decided adversely for them from the fact that John Harper's name does not appear of record in the United States land office, and through their inability to establish the fact that Harper's failure to register was the result of the government clerks in the land office on account of being drunk.

Dr. W. H. Tutt, of this place, went to Jackson last Friday on professional business. On Saturday he was suddenly stricken with paralysis, and died a few hours later. His remains were brought to this place Monday and buried Tuesday in the Tatt graveyard by the Odd Fellows, of which he was a faithful and devoted member. With his many friends and relatives we deeply mourn his loss.

J. F. Vansant picked up the courage to invade the confines of Breathitt county last Tuesday, but for what purpose is beyond the ken of human soul on earth or in Heaven. His business is inwardly private, and he trips the light fantastic in business with gum shoes of a noiseless tread. He may be out catching suckers for all we know.

The Hon. H. N. Horton, of Bearpen, has handed ye editor $1.50 to pay his subscription to THE HERALD up to date, with the extremely polite request for you to continue to send him THE HERALD if you want to, and of course you want to. Now who will be next to perform a religious duty by paying up in full for THE HERALD?

We opine that by the last of next week we will know whether Campton is to take an oil boom or not, as the Si Cabell well will be completed by then. We hope it will be such a gusher as to completely knock the props from under the tongueless oil men in the work.

WHAT ANSWER?

A Love Crisis in the Life of a Girl.

By Helen Hamilton.

HAS the Gaudiges Franklin forgotten me?

Margaret Listemann turned quickly, as the crowd of students thronged from the lecture-room of the Berlin university, and somewhat desperately Wilhelm repeated audibly what had at first been a mental question. A swift upward glance at the tall fellow beside her, whose brown eyes were looking down into hers, then Margaret, blushing, answered, laughingly, as she cordially offered her hand, "Indeed I have not. Mother, let me present Herr Sternberg, to whose patience three years ago, in giving form and coherence to my Deutsch sentences, I owe my rapid progress."

Mrs. Listemann's frank, unaffected greeting instantly proclaimed them Americans, though one glance at Margaret's intelligent, animated face and indelibly distinctive style would have made known her nationality.

"How natural the room looks," Margaret said, glancing around at the time-worn desks and benches. Her voice was steady, and really admirably controlled, considering the unusual rate at which her heart was beating. The consciousness of the extreme absurdity of its accelerated throbs only increased their speed and deepened the flush upon her cheeks.

All this was very unusual for Margaret; blushing was not her habit, and so seldom had she felt the beating of her own heart that she had almost concurred in the dictum of many friends of both sexes, "Margaret Listemann has no heart." Impassioned she certainly was not; all her power and depth of loving were reserved, held sacred for one. "Perhaps we may never meet," she had subconsciously thought, "but if he comes I shall feel—shall know I am alone for all eternity."

The one absorbing occupation of her twenty-three years of life had been study—natural inclination made her turn to books, necessity made her specialize.

Her father had been a genius whose inventive power lacked practical force, so others reaped where he had sown. Leaving the fatherland when but a lad, in America he found wife, child and home; imaginative, high-souled, in a word, a dreamer, he could ill cope with poverty and life.

At 17 Margaret realized that soon she and her mother would have but each other, and passionately she sought to absorb into her life the one thing which would recall constantly her idolized father—his language. She thought, dreamed, talked only his loved German.

It was found at Mr. Listemann's death that nothing was left for his wife and child, so both must become bread-winners. Berlin, with its countless advantages, became the goal of Margaret's ambition, that she might qualify herself to teach, and friends leaving almost immediately for the German capital, she decided to go with them for three years' study. What this separation meant to mother and child none realized but themselves.

As Margaret left the lecture-room, and slowly they walked toward the Tiergarten, drawing in deep breaths of the morning air.

"I know there are hundreds of people here," said Margaret, as they sat beneath a spreading linden, "and each feels as I, a personal ownership, and yet I never come but what this peacefulness seems for me alone."

Margaret talked almost at random, glancing now and then at her silent companion, knowing intuitively what his tense expression foreboded, yet, womanlike, trembling and fearful, while rejoicing in the knowledge.

"Fraulein, may I tell you something of myself—my home?" questioned Wilhelm, abruptly. Scarcely waiting for the assent, he exclaimed, passionately: "There has not been a day since I was you three years ago that you have not filled my every thought. To-morrow you will leave Berlin—I cannot let you go and not tell you what you are to me—life, love, everything."

As he leaned toward her trying to read her blushing, half-averted face, she altered, "Your father—what will he think, what will he say?"

"My father—how I long to have you meet him; you would win him for ever," Wilhelm added smiling. "If he once heard you express your fervid admiration for our great men—Acht! how I envy them," he murmured under his breath. "And Elizabeth—did I ever tell you of Elizabeth, my cousin, who is like a daughter to my father? She is alone in the world and came to me five years ago. She has given her life to me, she came when all the world was dark, when my mother died." Wilhelm rose as he spoke, and Margaret knew by his sudden pallor what that loss still meant. After a moment's pause, he continued: "Margaret, though quiet, is beautiful; and—oh, Margaret, mein Liebeschen, my beloved—could I not make your happiness?"

All the passion of a man's strong, yet tender, love is throbbing in the low, whispered words, and, trembling, Margaret laid her hand in his as she replied, faintly: "I cannot answer now; I must see her, my mother."

"She shall be mine," he said. As in a dream they walked to Margaret's home, separating with one thought, one hope—"To-morrow."

"To hear, to nurse, to rear, to watch and then to lose." Involuntarily these words rose to Mrs. Listemann's lips, as Margaret, her knees, her head resting in her mother's lap, revealed in broken sentences her whole heart. The words were never spoken. The pang which wrung the mother's heart—the bitterness of abdicating where so long she had reigned first, all—were thrust aside, and drawing Margaret to her bosom she rejoiced as only a mother can whose one desire is her child's happiness.

"He is coming to-morrow, mother. To-morrow at ten, for his answer, Oh, I am so happy, so happy."

are too true, too noble, to do aught but hold as sacred the secret of Elizabeth."

The letter slipped from Margaret's nerveless fingers. Bewildered, stunned, she sat incapable of thought; then the full meaning of it all crowded upon her, and low whole woman's heart rose in revolt.

"He is mine," she cried fiercely; "he loves me and not her. I understand him. I comprehend his work, his ambitions. To give him up, to leave him for us both—untold misery, for he would never know what separated us. I cannot, will not, wreak his life and mine."

"It was cruel, unmanly to write me such a letter. No, no," she moaned, "I did not mean that; the poor child did not know that he had told his love to me; he had been here from boyhood. It was but her woman's instinct to clutch, to save his dearest treasure. She turned to me as to her one earthly refuge; she bared her heart to me as to her God. Heavenly Father!" Margaret groaned, "what shall I do—enter my paradise and hear a starving soul forever knocking at the gate, or blight his life and mine?"

By sheer strength of will she stifled her clamorous heart and forced herself to weigh and balance justly Elizabeth's appeal. As Jane, who wrestled with the angel for his blessing, so in spirit Margaret sought for guidance. "Searcher of hearts," was her unspoken prayer. "Thou knowest it is not my own happiness I seek—but his, Wilhelm's. Give me to know which, which in the end will make for his best, his highest good. If it is Elizabeth I will give way without a murmur; if it is I, my life shall be one long devotion. Hear me, Eternal Goodness, and answer."

The first faint ray of daybreak stole through the window as slowly, with clasped hands, and eyes which seemed to look into the unknown years, Margaret rose from her knees and paced back and forth; then with a low, fervent "I thank Thee, O Father, that Thou hast shown me what is right to do," she threw herself upon the bed and sank into a dreamless sleep.

The sunlight flooded the little sitting room with its golden glory as Margaret, in spotless white, awaited her lover's coming. The consecration of love shone in her face. As her mother kissed her she whispered lovingly, "You look, my child, as a bride adorned."

There was a quick, springing step upon the stairs. "Wilhelm," was her low cry as he came over her, his arms outstretched, his voice breaking with love's yearning as he breathed, "Heart's dearest, what answer?" FLATTERERS OF ROYALTY.
People of the Courts Who Are Always Ready to Praise and Flatter for Favor.

One of the difficulties of royalty—one of the things that account for the tendency to selfishness which has been considered one of the weaknesses of the royal caste—is that they so seldom hear the truth. One could give many examples of this in even the lighter affairs of life, says London M. A. P. For instance, when Louis XIV. was once playing at backgammon, a favorite game with him, a dispute arose as to a doubtful throw of the monarch. The courtiers, appearing to give the verdict against the king, not daring to tell too palpable a lie. The Comte de Grammont entered at this awkward moment and the king asked him to decide the matter. The witty courtier replied without a moment's hesitation: "Your majesty is in the wrong."

CHILD PRETTINESS.

Much May Be Done to Improve the Facial Features and Skin in Tender Years.

A mother can do much to make her child pretty; the attention it receives during its babyhood is all important in its ultimate development.

During babyhood, or rather, youth, the seeds are sown for a clear complexion, and all that goes with it—bright eyes, good temper, good teeth, a well-shaped mouth, nose and lips, writes Mrs. Mary Easton, M. D., in American Queen.

It is a well-established fact that the beauty of the complexion often depends upon the condition of the teeth. Dyspepsia is brought on by unclean teeth, and is more often than not traced to teeth. Dyspepsia brings with it the necessary evils of a sallow skin and generally poor complexion. Hence, the necessity for guarding the teeth of the little ones, for, of course, not only the complexion is ruined, as I have just shown, by poor teeth, but the shape of the mouth, and, indeed, of the entire lower portion of the face, may be marred.

It is usual, of course, for scrupulous attention to be paid to the practice of brushing the teeth daily, but while this very necessary habit is insisted on, mothers overlook the fact that they themselves may sometimes do much to encourage the growth of sound, healthy teeth, by feeding their children on home-forming foods prior to the cutting of the second teeth. And, again, by using none of the liquid dentifrices, which eat off the enamel and destroy the teeth hopelessly.

Home water is considered a good thing to add to the nursery milk as an aid to healthy teeth, while an overabundance of sweets encourages decay, and is at all times to be avoided, but more particularly during the teething period.

It is unnecessary to dwell on the fact that plenty of ventilation and fresh air are essential to perfect health, but it must be borne in mind that these must be provided to the exclusion of drafts; the child who is perpetually catching cold is in danger of losing a little point of beauty of which many a belle is proud, namely, a delicately shaped nostril. The violent and frequent use of the pocket-handkerchief is apt to produce a permanent thickening of the gristle which separates the nostrils, to deform its natural shape, and destroy the delicacy of outline. Hence, colds should be guarded against in childhood, for not only are they temporarily disfiguring to beauty, but their influence is likely to be lasting.

HOW TO STAIN FLOORS.
Some Suggestions Which May Aid the Housekeeper in Obtaining Best Results.

Hard floors require oiling and rubbing twice a month to make them presentable, and every year or two they will wear off, so that a new coat of some and varnish will be required on the worn places.

The reddish, yellow or brown tones of the stained floor can readily be matched with the same color stain composed mainly of turpentine, into which is mixed a portion of burnt umber, yellow ochre or burnt sienna, according to the tone of the old stain, says Woman's Home Companion.

A VENERABLE PASTOR CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

Pe-ru-na is a Catarrhal Tonic Especially Adapted to the Declining Powers of Old Age.

The Oldest Man in America Attributes His Long Life and Good Health to Pe-ru-na.

Mr. Isaac Brock, of McLennan county, Texas, has attained the great age of 114 years. He is an ardent friend of Pe-ru-na and speaks of it in the following terms. Mr. Brock says: "After a man has lived in the world as long as I have he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so."

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper remedy for ailments due directly to the effects of the climate. For 114 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States. During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds, catarrh and diarrhoea. I had always supposed that these ailments to be different diseases. For the last ten or fifteen years I have been reading Dr. Hartman's books and have learned from them one thing in particular. That these ailments are the same and that they are properly called catarrh."

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Pe-ru-na, I have found it to be the best, not the only reliable remedy for these ailments. It has been my stand-by for many years and I attribute my good health and my extreme old age to this remedy."

Major Frank O'Mahoney, West Side, Hannibal, Mo., writes: "I am professionally a newspaper correspondent, now 79 years old. I have watched the growing power of the Pe-ru-na plan from its inception in the little log cabin, through its gradations of success up to its present establishment in Columbus, Ohio, and I conclude that merit brings its full reward."

"Up to a few years ago I felt no need to test its medicinal potency, but lately when my system needed it, your Pe-ru-na relieved me of many catarrhal troubles. Some ten years ago I weighed 270 pounds, but fell away down to 168 pounds, and besides loss of flesh I was subject to stomach troubles, indigestion, loss of appetite, insomnia, night sweats, and a foreboding of the ailing machine system out of order. During some months I gave Pe-ru-na a fair trial, and it rejuvenated my whole system. I feel thankful therefore, for although 79 years old I feel like a young man."—Major Frank O'Mahoney.

In old age the mucous membranes become thickened and partly lose their function.

This leads to partial loss of hearing, smell and taste, as well as digestive disturbances.

Pe-ru-na corrects all this by its specific operation on all the mucous membranes of the body.

One bottle will convince anyone. Once used and Pe-ru-na becomes a life-long stand-by with old and young.

Mr. Samuel Saunders of Blytheville, Mo., writes: "My disease was catarrh of the urethra and bladder. I got a bottle of Pe-ru-na and began taking it, and in a few days I was relieved and could sleep and rest all night. I think that Pe-ru-na is a valuable remedy. I had tried other very highly recommended medicines, but they did me no good. My physician told me that I could not expect to be cured of my trouble, as I was getting to be an old man (57 years). I feel very thankful for what Pe-ru-na has done for me."

In a later letter Mr. Saunders says: "I am still of the same mind with regard to your Pe-ru-na medicine."

Rev. J. N. Parker, Utica, N. Y., writes: "In June, 1901, I lost my sense of hearing entirely. My hearing had been somewhat impaired for several years, but not so much affected that I could hold converse with my friends; but in June, 1901, my sense of hearing left me so that I could hear no sound whatever. I was also troubled with severe rheumatic pains in my limbs. I commenced taking Pe-ru-na and now my hearing is restored as my limbs. I commenced taking Pe-ru-na and now my hearing is restored as my limbs. I commenced taking Pe-ru-na and now my hearing is restored as my limbs."

Mrs. F. E. Little, Tolono, Ill., writes: "I can recommend Pe-ru-na as a good medicine for chronic catarrh of the stomach and bowels. I have been troubled severely with it for over a year, and also a cough. Now my cough is all gone, and all the distressing symptoms of catarrh of the stomach and bowels have disappeared. I will recommend it to all as a rare remedy. I am so well I am contemplating a trip to Yellow Stone Park this coming season. How is that for one 71 years old?"

THE FARMING WORLD

TURKS MAKING BUTTER.

The Way in Which They Operate Their Creameries Is Amusing and Very Primitive.

Efforts are to be made to introduce American dairy machinery in Turkey, where the creameries are managed on a rather primitive plan. Constantinople imports most of its butter from Siberia, instead of encouraging the development of the industry at home, and the fat of the tail of the famous fat-tailed sheep is used throughout the country as a culinary substitute.

Butter in Turkey is manufactured exclusively from thickened milk, known as "yaourt," no attempt being made to collect the cream and use it for butter-making. Fresh milk is heated in kettles to boiling point and allowed to cool to 50 degrees, after which a small quantity of old "yaourt" is added. This fermentation is induced, and the result is a junk-like stuff without a slight acid taste.

"Yaourt" is very nutritious, and easily digested, and is used in the preparation of various Turkish dishes, both meats and vegetables. When it is employed for butter-making it is put into a jar of earthenware, or earthen, suspended by cords. Enough hot water is added to raise the temperature to 50 degrees, and the primitive churn is kept agitated for 10 minutes, until butter forms. The residual buttermilk (used in the kitchen where American cooks would employ ordinary buttermilk or sour milk) is called the "wine of the Turks," and is known in the market as "airan."

Most of the milk thus used for making butter is that of the sheep, and the product is white and creamy in appearance. The Turks seem willing to learn new dairy methods, however, and might do so very profitably to themselves, the pastoral wealth of the country being great. Recently at Harput, Turkey, Yankee churns were exhibited in operation, and native visitors were much astonished to see yellow butter turned out from cows' milk in seven or eight minutes. —X. Y. CONSIDER THE CALVES.

To Sell Them Now, at a Sacrifice Price, Is Short-sightedness Absolutely Inevitable.

From market reports one might conclude that there has been an enormous wave of calves sweeping over the country. The markets, especially those of the west, have been overstocked, so that even in the face of record-breaking beef prices, the prices of calves are lower than a year ago. It is difficult to believe that there is an overproduction of calves, and the rushing of them to market at what appears to be a sacrifice price cannot be anything but business shortsightedness. The beef supply of the country must be short, else such high prices would not rule. It is a plain proposition that the male calf is fatter to the steer, and if the calves are sacrificed there is no possibility of cheaper beef for several years. We farmers, breeders and feeders do not want cheaper beef, for we see no more profit in the making of the beef than the maker of it deserves. As for the consumer, in the cities and towns, they will have to make the best of it, for the nation that spends nearly $100,000,000 yearly for beverage liquors can cut down the drink bill to keep up with the bottle. But it would appear to be good business for the raisers of calves to keep on the farms such calves as have promise of growing into good beef animals or good dairy animals. The present scarcity of feed will not always continue, and when the new crops are available for feeding those who are desirous of making home consumption of home productions are likely to find a shortage of months to do the fattening. Leave Orders in Writing.

Have a small box with sloping cover fastened up in the barn. Use this for a desk and have pencil and tablet always fastened there with a string. When you think of something that needs doing, a leave to be needed or a gate rebung, put it down and slip the note onto a hook. Change over these notes every day, and you'll be surprised to see how you'll find time to keep up with the odd jobs which you've forgotten before. When you're suddenly called away from the farm, don't leave word with your wife in regard to the hired man's work. She has more to remember already than she ought to have. Make your note on paper, and leave it at the desk in the barn with the understanding that the note is to be kept as the order for doing the work. This will do away with the frequent misunderstandings caused by orders misinterpreted. — Farm Journal.

The dairyman who looks after the comfort of his cows will get the most out of them. He will know the cost of milk production which is the same thing as increase in price.

SOME IMMENSE FARMS.

One in Texas, Owned by Illinois Graduate, Is as Large as the State of Connecticut.

While the United States census reports 3,000,000 farms averaging 140 acres each in the southwest states and territories, the average size is 200 acres each. Col. C. C. Slaughter, of Dallas, Tex., has 1,250,000 acres of farm and ranch land. In the Panhandle district of Texas the Capitol syndicate, of which Senator C. K. Fairwell, of Illinois, is the head, has a ranch of 3,000,000 acres, or more than as large as the state of Connecticut. They raise from 10,000 to 20,000 acres of corn and other forage crops and ship from 15,000 to 20,000 head of steers each year; 250 cowboys and 50 farmhands are employed. In Oklahoma is one ranch of 50,000 acres. They raised this year 8,000 acres of wheat, 5,000 acres of sorghum, millet and Kaffir corn; 8,000 to 10,000 cattle are shipped each year. Although the expenses of running the ranch are $95,000 a year, the profits the last year were $150,000. The Fairwell farm in central Kansas has 5,000 acres. On it are a flouring mill, a complete weather bureau, post office for owner and employees, gas plant and long-distance telephone. The wheat grown is made into flour on the farm. There is the largest field of alfalfa in the United States, 1,500 acres in one tract. This cuts three crops a year, about one ton at each cutting. Frank Rockefeller has 11,000 acres of grazing and farming land in western Kansas, of which about 3,000 acres are under cultivation and the rest in alfalfa and timothy pastures. There are some of the finest land herds and Short-horn cattle in the world on this farm, valued at $3,000,000, including one $100,000 bull. The grain for these cattle is grown and ground on the farm. He intends to convert 10,000 acres of pasture land into alfalfa. The cattle and horse farms are of iron and stone. John W. Stewart, of Wellington, Kans., has 740 farms, all separate and in different parts of the state. It is not uncommon for a farmer in these sections to buy 15 harvesters, a dozen plows and as many corn harvesters at one time. Fifty men make a good harvesting crew for a farm there.

ALL-AROUND LOG SLED.

It Is Strong, Easily Put Together and Can Be Used with Snow or Without.

I have been putting out some lumber, and as there was little snow I have used the sled shown herewith. It is called a snap-drawn and is such as is used in the lumber camp. It can be used with or without snow. I took two yellow birch stumps about six inches through and three feet long for runners. The two bunks were about the same size and two feet eight inches long. The forward bunk is put on with one bolt in each end, so it can have a good chance to work.

For the middle bunk I put two two-inch holes through each runner, then took a small, round birch of the size wanted, heated it in a fire and bent it in the shape needed to put over the middle bunk and the two ends down through the runner, then wedged them solid, but so there would be plenty of play. The nose of the runners must be made so they will not catch on every rock or stump. This can be done by putting the forward bunk at the very end of the runner. The chain is put on the log with a half hitch and drawn through a hole through both bunks. Birch is the best wood, as it wears the smoothest on frozen ground. —Orange Judd Farmer.

The Value of Appearance.

The appearance of our cheese factories and creameries has much to do with insuring an improvement in the products. The surroundings of these places do much to set the pace. A nicely built, clean creamery is an inspiration to all connected with it. The workers take better care of themselves, and the patrons are more careful to bring only good products. This is the tendency, effective to a greater or less degree. What can we expect of the patrons, when the creamery itself is a tumbledown affair with drains filled with a stinking combination of putrid milk and dirty water? The task of securing from the patrons clean milk is nearly a hopeless one, unless the establishment that receives it is measurably clean. —Farmers' Review.

American Apple Industry.

Few people realize the extent of the apple industry of the United States. Thirty years ago a barrel of American apples was a curiosity in the English market. The total exports from America to Europe, for the first week of last December, amounted to 114,791 barrels. The total shipments of apples from American ports for last year up to December 6, were 1,566,298 barrels. The total for preceding year amounted to only 1,692,353 barrels, an increase of over a million barrels. As a staple "money crop" they are hard to beat.

Quail and Prairie Chickens.

It is a fact well established among farmers, by observation, and fully corroborated by scientific investigations, that the quail and prairie chickens are among the greatest of our insect destroyers. Don't destroy any of them during the breeding season and allow no general hunting upon your farm if you would preserve these "able assistants" of the farmer. "He who sows courtesy reaps friendship." —Farmers' Voice.

Start the garden right by planting in rows, so that the horse may do the hardest work. Many farmers wear themselves out doing with the hoe what the horse and cultivator could do quickly and far more easily.

Gracelessness of the Tactless Sex

By KATHERINE POPE,

Author of "Letters of a Happy Poor Woman," Etc.

NOT so very long ago there appeared in a periodical that numbers many females among its readers, an article headed The Mannerless Sex. It piqued the curiosity at least to the extent of finding out which was meant. The writer, a man, made the accusation against women, and there were women not a few that agreed with him. Nevertheless, The Tactless Sex is a phrase (not accusation, for the tactlessness seems inborn) coined in reference to masculines.

From his sturdy babyhood to palsied age, man's woman-folk trembles for what next may fall from his mouth in the way of bluntness and unintended thrust. Sometimes this habit of his is held by him a part of his manly prerogative, humor; and, for that reason, not in favor with her, legendarily lacking in it. No sister, cousin, aunt, or wife herself, or mother, but wonders over and attempts to analyze that which by her is considered a failing; universal, deep-rooted, unreformable. No matter the kindness of heart, the keenness of intellect, the real underlying chivalry, for "the grace of his lips" not many a man is noted.

Lives there a man that can silence the joke in regard to the years of the middle-aged young ladies that cross his path? Does any girl with ruddy cheeks ever number among her acquaintances a man that has not once alluded to their unusual warmth of hue? Does any lady of undesirable avoirdupois escape the slings and arrows outrageous man is wont to hurl at her unwieldiness? Is there a scrawny sister but has had to force the social grin at pleasanties from men friends in regard to her starved appearance? Is there a secret weakness or defect a frail woman artfully tries to conceal, discussion of which is also artfully avoided by her companions of the same sex, which unthinking man with one fell sentence will not suddenly bring to light, as ruthlessly as unconsciously?

He means no offense, but is lacking in that sixth sense, that wireless telegraphy that was in use by women thousands of years before Marconi was born.

He calls the opposite sex supersensitive, hard to get on with, difficult to understand, and says one is always walking on eggs when in their society. And, thus, like the first man, satisfactorily disposing of the blame, he settles down to unruffled, unassailable content with himself and his brothers, with whom he can just and guffaw unrebuked.

And yet the blunderers are not thick-skinned themselves, in fact are quite sensitive to imputations, the lifting of an eyebrow, a tone of voice. They expect front their womenkind tactful speech and treatment. One would think, seeing they wear no invulnerable armor, that their words might return to them as boomerangs; but, perhaps woman, as when throwing stones, can never equal man in this matter of hurling missiles with ease and sure aim.

MAKING FORTUNES.

Money of the Market Is Not for the Man Who Has Merely a Theory.

The fortunes have been made, Will Payne tells readers of Century, in "The Chicago Board of Trade," not by men who entered the market with a preconceived theory as to its course, which they attempted to make good through thick and thin, but rather by those who took things as they came, watching the drift, shaping their way from day to day, like prudent merchants according to the current.

This is confusing to the novice, for the novice always comes in with a preconceived theory. Some time ago a young man with a large hope, a moderate fortune, and considerable social prestige, was shown the enormous possibilities in December pork. It looked absolutely convincing; but he called upon a great packer with whom he had a personal acquaintance. Yes, the packer thought very well of pork—was buying it, in fact. Thus doubly assured, the young man bought. The market went his way and he bought more. Then the market turned. The young man reviewed the convincing statistics, remembered the words of the packer, and stood stubbornly upon his line. When he was getting near the end of his margins he was horrified to learn that his friend, the packer, had shifted to the other side of the market two weeks before. He visited him, recalled the conversation and explained the situation. The packer stared. "Do you mean that you've been holding 2,500 barrels of pork all this time?" he demanded. "Yes," said the young man; "and I have it yet. Now, what can I do with it?" "I don't know," said the packer, "unless you can eat it."

TRICKING TRAVELERS.

How London Confidence Men Victimise Their Countrymen En Route for South Africa.

During the present exodus from London for the Cape, almost every boat that leaves Southampton carries passengers, who have been the victims of confidence tricks practiced upon them in the train, on the platform at Waterloo, or at Cook's corner in Ludgate Circus, says the London Express.

Particulars gathered by an Express representative go to show that confidence tricksters were never so numerous as at present, and their calling was never so lucrative, largely owing to the amazing artlessness of the traveling public.

The reason South African passengers are selected is that they are usually in too much of a hurry to get south to stay behind and prosecute in the event of the police being sent after their boarders. Besides, they carry their hoarded earnings in the convenient form of gold. More than once lately magistrates have dismissed charges against suspects because no prosecutor appeared, although the police could have produced long lists of previous convictions.

The other day an engineer, bound for Pretoria, had a bag taken from between his legs while he was conversing with a friend on the platform.

The preoccupied frame of mind is typical of the South African emigrant, which makes him an easy prey to rascals. Killed in the art of striking up an acquaintance and making a good impression.

The method of the thief is oftentimes easy; he has his part by heart and dresses for it, and his speech displays an intimate knowledge of the new country.

"I am for the Cape, too," a confidence man said in a typical case recently, "and shall be glad of your company during the voyage."

The schemer then intimated in a casual way that he was expecting a large sum of money, which was very valuable, and as the time for the departure of the train drew near he appeared to be consumed by a restless anxiety. Then the man appeared breathing hard.

"What is there a pay?" asked the sham traveler; and the reply was "five pounds."

A £50 note—a "flash" one, probably—was produced, but the luggage man would have nothing but gold.

In an apologetic way the man fouled up a five-pound note, and he unhappily complied. "Would you be so good," said the sharp at this point, "as to stand by my luggage a moment while I go to the bookstall?"

It was all over. The casual acquaintance was severed forever; and the police learned, as on many previous occasions, that the contents of the "valuable luggage" consisted of nothing more valuable than brown paper.

By this kindred dodges humdrum of pounds have recently passed from the pockets of the honest man off to seek their fortunes at the Cape, into the pockets of scoundrels in the country they are leaving behind.

New Cure for Lame Back. Rutledge, Minn., Feb. 16th.—Mr. E. C. Getchell of this place relates a happy experience which will be read with interest by all those who have a similar trouble.

It appears that last winter Mr. Getchell was seized with a lameness and soreness in his back which grew worse and worse till at last it became very bad and made it very difficult for him to get about at all.

After a time he heard of a new remedy for backache which some of his friends and neighbors had cured them, and he determined to try it. The name of the remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills and Mr. Getchell has proven that it is a sure cure.

He says: "I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills according to directions and my lame back was entirely cured and I am all O. K. again. Doan's Kidney Pills are as good as represented."

This remedy is very popular here and has worked some remarkable cures of Backache and Kidney Trouble.

THOUSANDS OF AMERICANS FOR WESTERN CANADA.

"There will be thousands of Americans coming up here in the Spring," was the remark made by a farmer from the vicinity of Langdon, North Dakota, when he arrived in Winnipeg, Manitoba, the capital of Western Canada, a few days since. He was the advance guard of a large body who are following him, and he has already invested in several farming sections for himself and others and purposes to take up his permanent abode in this country. He went on to say: "Hundreds are coming from my district alone. I know this to be a fact, for many of them are neighbors of mine. The chief topic of conversation with the farmers is the coming immigration in the spring."

"The impression general in the part of Dakota where I live that farmers can get from 10 to 15 cents more a bushel for wheat on the American side of the line than on the Canadian, has not prevented people from turning their eyes to Canada as a place to live in. They know they can get land in this country which is every bit as fertile as that in Dakota at about one-quarter the price. It is safe to say that the exodus from Dakota into Canada this year will exceed the expectations of all Canadians."

Happy Homes

One of the essentials of the happy homes of to-day is a fund of information as to right living and the best methods of promoting health and happiness. With proper knowledge, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and are of not less value than the using of the most wholesome foods and the selecting of the best medicinal agents when needed. With the well-informed, medicinal agents are used only when nature needs assistance and while the importance of cleansing the system effectually, when bilious or constipated, has long been known, yet until within recent years it was necessary to resort to oils, salts, extracts of roots, barks and other cathartics which were found to be objectionable and to call for constantly increased quantities.

Then physicians having learned that the most excellent laxative and cathartic principles were to be found in certain plants, principally in the leaves, the California Fig Syrup Co. discovered a method of obtaining such principles in their purest condition and of presenting them with pleasant and refreshing liquids in the form most acceptable to the system and the remedy became known as—Syrup of Figs—as figs were used, with the plants, in making it, because of their agreeable taste.

This excellent remedy is now rapidly coming into universal use as the best of family laxatives, because it is simple and wholesome and cleanses and sweetens the system effectually without disturbing the natural functions and without unpleasant after effects and its use may be discontinued when it is no longer required.

All who would enjoy good health and its blessings should remember that it is the one remedy which physicians and parents well-informed approve and recommend and use and which they and their little ones alike enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all reliable druggists, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, in original packages only, having the name of the remedy—Syrup of Figs—and the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.

THEODOR'S BLACK-DRAUGHT FOR CONSTIPATION

Constipation is nothing more than a clogging of the bowels and nothing less than vital stagnation or death if not relieved. If every constipated sufferer could realize that he is allowing poisonous filth to remain in his system, he would soon get relief. Constipation invites all kind of contagion. Headaches, biliousness, colds and many other ailments disappear when constipated bowels are relieved. Theodor's Black-Draught thoroughly cleans out the bowels in an easy and natural manner without the purging of calomel or other violent cathartics.

Be sure that you get the original Theodor's Black-Draught, made by The Chattanooga Medicine Co. Sold by all druggists in 25 cent and $1.00 packages.

The Harper Fortune.

From all we can learn the much talked of fortune left by John Harper in the Indian Territory is a myth. One of his descendants was at Muskogee a few days ago and after some investigation declined to invest any money in the effort to get a slice of the Harper wealth. He tells us that the name of John Harper does not appear on the records of the U. S. Land office. It is asserted that about the year 1882 Harper went to the land office to register, but the officials were drunk and he was unable to do so. It now becomes necessary to prove this fact, and as more than 70 years have elapsed, it will be seen how difficult it is to do this. We would be glad to see our friends in this section be successful in establishing their claims to a fortune, but we are bound to admit that we can see nothing in it for them.—Mt. Sterling Gazette.

Judge Lusk, accompanied by friend, James Pantin, a practical oil man of Pennsylvania, was here the latter part of last week. They were just from Morgan and Breathitt counties, where they inspected the oil prospects, and THE HERALD asked Mr. Pantin what he thought of the outlook. "It's a good gamble," he replied, and explained his reply by saying that while no indications of a bonanza appeared there was evidently oil to be found, and he thought the percentage in favor of the prospector. He says he would put down some wells if he could secure some satisfactory leases, and with that in view he is now looking around.

Good For Children.

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief in all cases of Cough, Croup and La Grippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of trouble. It draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes and cures permanently by enabling the lungs to contribute more life-giving and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood and tissues.

R. J. McLin about two weeks ago sold to Robert Bartley, of Ezel, a pair of 7-year-old sorrel mare mules at $290, and this week sold to Logan Murphy a pair of 13-year-old mules for $300. The four constituted the brag team formerly driven by Noah Taylor, colored.

A Thoughtful Man.

M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., knew what to do in the hour of need. His wife had such an unusual case of stomach and liver trouble, physicians could not help her. He thought of and tried Dr. King's New Life Pills and she got relief at once and was finally cured. Only 25c. at J. T. Day's, Hazel Green, and S. S. Combs & Sons, Campton, drug stores.

A fire at Mt. Sterling at an early hour Sunday morning destroyed property to the value of $50,000, with an insurance of perhaps $30,000. The grand opera house was destroyed, and the Masons lost $2,000 in regalia.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.
